INTRODUCTION.

THE second edition of the Blue Book of Mexico, issued two years after the first edition, contains practically the same contents, but every name and address in the book has been revised and brought up to date. Several new features have been added which it is believed will increase the value of the publication. The same conscientious care taken by the publishers during their first effort has been used in the preparation of this edition, and while there may possibly be errors and omissions, as a whole the Blue Book will be found as accurate as it is possible to make a directory.

The Blue Book of Mexico, in its completed form, has four parts. Of these, the first two, in addition to the customary incidental directory information, contain social and club features particularly of value to the Anglo-American colony of Mexico City, but of general interest as well to Americans and Englishmen at home, on whose account the matter is made somewhat extended and explanatory.

PART I.—GENERAL INFORMATION.

In this portion of the book is gathered together information relative to the city, its government, churches, charities, schools, publications, etc., especially arranged in reference to the American and English colonies, but containing complete details of all these subjects. The most important new feature of this part is the Chronological Record of important events in the English-speaking colony during the past year.

PART II.—CLUB AND SOCIAL DIRECTORY.

The club and social directory of the Blue Book is an important feature, as it contains a complete list of the members of all the foreign clubs, as well as the principal Mexican clubs.

PART III.—ENGLISH-SPEAKING RESIDENTS.

The third part is the directory of English-speaking residents of the Federal District, which was secured by a house-to-house canvass of the entire city and afterwards verified by return postal cards. It contains approximately 5,000 names, of which 2,000 are Anglo-Saxons. Using the customary directory multiple of  $3\frac{1}{2}$ , the total of 7,500 persons is made. Of this number 6,000 are Americans and 1,500 English subjects.

Orders for Exchange—Foreign and Domestic—are taken at all Offices.

PART IV.—THE CLASSIFIED DIRECTORY.

The classified business directory of all Mexico City business firms, which composes the fourth part, is the most important part of all. Its double index makes it serviceable equally to English- and Spanish-speaking residents of the capital and the Republic, while its distinctly American method of classification will prove readily comprehensible to business men in the United States and England. This classified list was carefully compiled and was verified by return postal cards sent, with their particular classification, to each firm. The response to these cards was general, and practically every business man in the city is an advance subscriber.

MEXICO CITY'S POPULATION.

The City of Mexico is the seat of government not only of the Republic, but of a political division corresponding to the District of Columbia, called the Federal District (Distrito Federal). The population of the city proper is shown by the census of 1900 to have been 365,000. Taking into consideration the aversion of the lower classes to respond to the census, there are easily 550,000 persons in the Federal District and 425,000 in the city. Of the latter 150,000 are of the upper and middle classes, of whom 20,000 speak English.

THE STREETS OF MEXICO.

The City of Mexico is divided into eight wards (demarcaciones). A street is one block in length, numbered up one side and down the other. The termination of a block is the beginning of a new street. Street numbers seldom run higher than 20. In 1890 an attempt was made to name and number the streets according to modern methods, but the plan proved unpopular and was abandoned. However, the numbers then placed on the houses, running up into the thousands, are still frequently used, conflicting with the old numbers.

Since there are many successive streets of the same name, distinguished only by their numerical order, as First, Second, Third San Francisco, the house numbers in the Blue Book directories always follow the street name. For example: 3a Independencia 6, is Third Independencia Street, No. 6.

FUTURE EDITIONS.

In response to a general demand from the English-speaking colony and from the business men of the city the publishers of the Massey-Gilbert Co., Sucs., are now completing their plans so that future editions of the Blue Book may be issued promptly on the first of each year.

Aqueduct of Zempola, Hidalgo and Northeastern Railroads

The Hidalgo and Northeastern Railroads

THE shortest line between the cities of Mexico and Pachuca. Four passenger trains run daily between them.

The City of Pachuca is the most important mining center in the Republic, and the Valley of Tulancingo, through which the main line runs, is a richly fertile and large cereal-producing region.

The connections at Mexico City with the Mexican National and Interoceanic Railways and at Irolo with the latter, allow to handle through traffic between points on said lines and points on the Hidalgo and Northeastern Railroads, without any change of cars.

According to the arrangements made with the above, also with the Mexican, Mexican Central, Mexican National and Interoceanic, Mexican Southern and Cuernavaca and Pacific Railroads, through shipments can be made from points on their lines to points on the Hidalgo and Northeastern Railroads and vice versa, free of transfer charge.

The station in Mexico is located at Peralvillo, and electric tramways pass with great frequency in front of it. The main offices are situated in the interior of the City, Calle de Cordobanes No. 5.

STREETS.

The city is divided into eight precincts (demarcaciones). Till the year 1889 the streets (calles and callejones) had, as in all Mexican towns, a special name from block to block. In that year the streets were named according to the points of the compass and with numbers. The streets running toward the east and west are called "Avenidas" (avenues), those toward the north and south "Calles" (streets). Each of these avenues and streets has a number. The "Avenidas" toward the east have uneven, those toward the west even, numbers. The "Calles" running toward the north have uneven and those to the south even numbers. By means of these divisions it is very easy to find one's way. The dividing line from east to west is the old long street to Tacuba passing north behind the cathedral and the public park of the "Alameda." It is now simply known as "Avenida Oriente" and "Avenida Poniente." The dividing line from north to south begins one block east of the Alameda with the "Calle Norte," which runs from the corner of the new postoffice building toward Orrin's Circus. The "Calle Sur" passes in the opposite direction. The people unfortunately care little about this new arrangement and cling to the many old names, and for this reason the old names are used almost entirely in this book except in the newer portion of the city, where the new names are given.

and 46 acres were laid out for the purpose above noted. By a special concession from the Mexican Government, British subjects, as well as American citizens, may be interred in these grounds, under especially favorable conditions.

The grounds of the new cemetery have been beautifully laid out, and, as it appears to-day, it embodies the careful work of nearly two years, and compares well with the best American and European cemeteries. The management has displayed great originality in laying out the grounds, which have more the appearance of a beautiful park than a cheerless burial ground; and at the same time the site is invested with all the sacredness pertaining to a burial place for the dead.

All Americans who die here in an impoverished condition are furnished burial place free of charge.

The cemetery was formally dedicated February 20, 1901, the American Ambassador taking part in the ceremony. Officers: A. B. Ingalsbee, pres.; Ross Wemple, v.-pres.; H. P. Webb, secy.; W. W. Graham, treas.

U. S. National Cemetery.

Tacuba road, San Rafael. Est. 1851. Capt. John Ayers, supt.

On the western edge of the city, on the Calzada de San Cosme, is a little patch of ground possessing peculiar interest for Americans, and especially for those who reside in Mexico. Though on Mexican soil, it is American in the fullest sense of the word, for the full and perfect title is vested in the United States of America. It is the only piece of ground that the United States Government owns located in a foreign country. The cemetery was established in 1851, under an act of Congress. Seven hundred and fifty soldiers, killed in the war of '47, are buried together in a single grave. In memory of them a simple granite shaft, six feet in height, has been raised.

In the American cemetery are buried many well-known Americans who have died in Mexico. In 1899 the cemetery was closed for burial purposes, except for the remains of old soldiers. A new American cemetery has since been opened near the historic town of Tacuba, about thirty minutes' ride from the city. It contains forty-six acres of land. By a special concession from the Mexican Government, British subjects, as well as American citizens, may be interred in these grounds.

AMUSEMENTS.

ORRIN'S CIRCUS.

(Plazuela Villamil).

Mexico's most unique enterprise is her winter circus, the Circo-Teatro Orrin, which has been the capital's distinctive amusement feature for nearly 20 years. There is nothing like it in the world—possibly in no other city in the world could it attain the great success it has attained in Mexico. It is a combination of a regular "ring show" and vaudeville theatre, with a dash of Bohemianism pervading it all. There is something wonderfully fascinating to the tourist in the brilliantly lighted "Circo" to listen, perhaps, to an operatic selection by Parisian singers, to see a whirling vision of Viennese dancers, and then suddenly to be spattered with sawdust from the hoofs of the bare-backed horse of a dashing American girl rider. Yet all this is quite customary at Orrin's. "Turns" on the stage alternate with "acts" in the ring, and the ingenious construction of the building permits rare pantomime and spectacular possibilities.

The building, a handsome iron and stone affair, was built by Orrin Brothers, the proprietors, after designs of their own. It is a combination structure, under whose domed main hall tiers of seats, broken by a row of boxes, and capable of accommodating 3,000 people, are arranged in amphitheatre form. The circle of the tiers is rendered incomplete by the erection at one side of a full theatre stage, in advantageous view of every seat. In the center of the round- ing rows of seats is a regulation circus ring, just as big as the "Greatest on Earth," but without the disagreeable accompaniments of obscuring poles and ropes and pulleys. In the comfortable chairs or boxes, it is like seeing the show from one's parlor window.

But there are other combinations still. The tiers of orchestra seats have separate cuts every 10 feet, and are so mounted on wheels that, within 20 minutes' time, they may be detached and rolled back under the higher tier of boxes above, completely disappearing from view. Over the vacant space and the circus ring a floor is laid, and the result is a vast level ballroom, with boxes all around, and here are held the great American Charity Balls on Thanksgiving night and the Fourth of July, when the building is generously donated for the occasion by the Messrs. Orrin.

The town season of the Circus is during the winter months, when Mexico City is gayest. In late January, usually, the season begins. The opening night at "Orrin's" sees the boxes a mass of kaleidoscopic color and the foyer the meeting place for every one "Who's who" in Mexico. The circus season lasts until late in May, when the "Circo" proper tours the Republic, and Spanish and Italian dramatic and operatic companies fill the house.

The Orrin Brothers are Americans, whom their enterprise has made independently wealthy, and who are among the most influential men in Mexico, not only in the colony, but among Mexicans of standing. In great measure their popularity has been brought about not by the circus alone, but by their generous contributions to charity. "Lujo" or gala nights are frequent during the season, and these are often wholly for the benefit of deserving charity. For instance, the performance for the American Hospital in February of this year netted over $1,000, and this benefit, with others, is repeated each year. It is this sort of thing that makes the name of Orrin a word with which to conjure.

A feature of Orrin's is "Dick" Bell, 40 years a clown, and half that time with Orrin's.

Performances are given at 8:45 p. m. every evening and at 4 p. m. Thursdays and Sundays. Admission prices range from 25c. to $1.50.

A league has been formed of the following teams: Independents, National Railroad, Bachelors, Mexico Mine & Smelter Supply Co., Mexicans, Insurance men, Mexican Central Ry., Bankers, Professional men and directors of the Y. M. C. A. Matches between the above teams are held three times a week at the Y. M. C. A. building, Puente Alvarado No. 4.

Spanish Ball Games.

PELOTA.—The national game of Spain was formerly very popular in Mexico and there were three frontons or courts where the game was played. Owing to a number of disagreements and irregularities in the playing the games have now been practically discontinued, although there are occasional games played at the fronton in Calle Iturbide. Ordinary admission, $1, with preferred seats $1.50; boxes, $8. Betting on the games is the chief attraction.

This, after seventeen years' of continuous racing. A new track is under construction near Chapultepec, and the sport will be revived.

Billiards.

The game is becoming very popular in Mexico, especially since the yearly visits of professional players from the United States was inaugurated several years ago. During the past winter there were a number of successful series of games between American, Spanish and French players, which drew large crowds. The largest billiard hall in the city and Republic is the Brunswick-Balke, at 1a Independencia 10, which is modern and up-to-date in every respect.

BOATING.

The Lakeside Boating Club.

This club was started by a few Anglo-American boating enthusiasts in the year 1890 and grew to large proportions, having had at one time a membership of nearly 300. A number of regatta picnics have been held under its auspices at Ayotla, El Peñon, Xochimilco, Mas-Arriba and Mexicaltzingo, and the older foreign residents of the city still recall many happy days spent by them as guests of this popular club. Owing to the drainage of the Valley of Mexico by the Government, the old favorite and accessible resorts have disappeared one by one, until now boating is attended with much expense and inconvenience. The present headquarters of the Lakeside Club is at Mexicaltzingo, where, unfortunately, the Viga canal is too narrow for a boat race. The removal of the boathouse to Xochimilco has been contemplated, but due to the lack of rapid means of communication between that beautiful watering place and the metropolis, the project is being allowed to await railway developments. The present officers of this club are: Pres., Thomas Phillips; hon. secy., Henri Cassereau; hon. treas., Etienne Pucheu.

They are planting 1,000 acres in sugar-cane, and are now arranging for the installation of the necessary machinery. They have 120,000 coffee trees in full production; 2,000 rubber trees, and are extending the development of the coffee and rubber to cover 2,000 acres.
